Dangers

IN THE CAR PARK

There are several potential risks surrounding your car park, including accidents involving both vehicles and pedestrians. Here are some common car park hazards that you may want to try to prevent or eliminate.

Vehicle collisions

Bumps and prangs can sometimes be due to poor layout or organisation. To help prevent collisions, you need clear road markings and signage to guide traffic through your car park, preferably one-way traffic routes, as well as clearly marked parking spaces.

Pedestrian safety

Car parks have a lot of foot traffic, as drivers and passengers need to cross the car park to get to their vehicles. Ensure that you have clear, marked routes for pedestrians and place disabled parking and parent and child parking as close to your visitors' end destination as possible. Good lighting will increase visibility for pedestrians and drivers.

Potholes

Potholes present a risk of damage to vehicles, and are particularly hazardous to cyclists, motorcyclists and users of mobility scooters. They can also be a serious trip hazard for pedestrians. Mark them as soon as possible with cones or hazard tape until they can be dealt with using an instant pothole repair product.

Poor signage

Well-planned and maintained car park signage will help prevent accidents in your parking area. The right signs can indicate traffic direction, speed restrictions, no entry areas, exits and entrances, loading and delivery bays, and various potential hazards. Make sure signs are well-placed, relevant and necessary.

Environmental risks

Monitor weather conditions and their effect on health and safety in your parking area. In the colder months, you should de-ice surfaces, clear snow, and grit the car park and walkways. It is also essential to monitor fallen leaves, which can not cause a slip hazard and clog drainage systems.
